Description

View of an undergrowth, 1901 Signed lower left and dated

Fedor Petrovich Riznichenko - Russian and Ukrainian landscape painter, was a member of the Saint Petersburg Society of Artists and regularly participated in Peredvizhniki exhibitions.

Riznichenko worked primarily as a landscape painter, following the tradition of Russian lyrical landscape established by Alexei Savrasov and Isaac Levitan. Throughout his career, he received several medals (bronze in 1887 / silver in 1889; silver in 1892; silver in 1894). He frequently participated in academic exhibitions and salons.

In 1911, for their autumn exhibition, the Imperial Academy of Arts held a solo exhibition of Riznichenko's works.
