descendant of the woman portrayed through her daughter Catherine, who married Hermann (?) Heller in the early 19th century. The second inscription, made in a finer hand also in ink, belongs to Richard's son Gerhard (?). And the third inscription, the year of Gerhard's death, is already written in pen.

The painting is a good example of a work of art with a carefully documented provenance. Another version of this portrait is in the collection of Boris Wilnitsky in Vienna.

I am grateful to Boris Wilnitsky for his precious help in establishing the authorship of this portrait.
