

Kakemono Japanese Calligraphy

175 EUR

Period : 20th century

Condition : Excellent

Material : Paper

Length : 162 cm

Width : 39 cm

<https://www.proantic.com/en/1074195-kakemono-japanese-calligraphy.html>

Description

calligraphy in ink, executed with a brush.

??????,??????,??????,?????? .

the translation is: The young man is old, but he can't learn, and an inch of time is not something to be taken lightly. I haven't yet dreamed of spring grass in the pond, but the leaves in front of the stage have already sounded autumn.

This poem is about time passing too quickly, and that learning takes time. If you stray from this learning in your youth, you'll grow old without having completed it.

It was written by Zhu Xi (September 15, 1130 - April 23, 1200), a famous rationalist, thinker, philosopher, educator, poet and representative of the Min school of thought of the Southern Song dynasty, known as Zhu Zi, the most outstanding master of Confucianism since Confucius and

Dealer

fudo-myoo

japanese art

Mobile : 0641986179

1 boulevard pasteur

Soissons 02200

Mencius.