Description

Mirror with canted sides in octagonal shape with glazing bead, the structure is in wood covered with very ornate embossed brass. Each cutaway is made up of two rectangular mirrors, the large central mirror is bevelled, brass motifs decorated with angels delimit each angle. Late 19th century. The pediment and the bottom of the lamp have been separated from the mirror itself for a long time and can be reunited after a simple cleaning of the brass which has taken on a different patina over the years.
