Description

Italian Angel From The XVII Eme Century, Former Francesc Cambó Collection.

Superb cherubic angel head in Carrara marble, Italian work from the mid-17th century resting on a marble pedestal from the 19th century.

The face of the cherub is quite charming, the gaze turned upwards, the face slightly sideways.

He is very expressive and charming.

The lines are finely detailed as well as the wings enveloping it.

A very beautiful 17th century sculpture from the prestigious collection of Francesc Cambó (1876-1947), a former Spanish minister who bequeathed a large part of his collection of paintings to the Prado Museum in Madrid, including the still life with jugs by Zurbarán.
The old photos are taken in his mansion on via
