Description

We are grateful to Prof. Daniele Sanguineti for suggesting the attribution to Domenico Parodi (1672 - 1742). He dates the painting into the period between 1730 and 1740. Domenico Parodi, one of the best Italian portrait painters between the end of the seventeenth century and the first half of the eighteenth century; the author sets his art according to the French models, fully returning to the genre of the " French " portrait, inaugurated by Hyacinthe Rigaud at the beginning of the 18th century. Parodi acquired the French portraiture code by depicting the nobility with a celebratory impact, with poses and gestures of refined luxurious elegance, to which he contributed use of a pictorial palette with silvery tones. In our case an elegantly dressed gentleman is immortalized, with a rich dress

Domenico Parodi, was an Italian painter, as well as a sculptor and architect, of the late-Baroque. He was the son of the famous Genoese sculptor Filippo Parodi and the older brother of the Baroque painter Giovanni Battista Parodi (1674-1730). Domenico was initially apprenticed with in Venice. Sebastiano Bombelli, then, in the early 1690s, working in the studios of Carlo Maratta and then under Maratta's pupil Paolo Girolamo Piola. Among his pupils were Nicolo Malatto, Angiolo Rossi, Batista Parodi (his brother); and son Domenico. Domenico Junior resided in Lisbon, and was a celebrated portrait painter in his day. Another pupil, briefly, was Francesco Campora. He frescoed a hall in Palazzo Negroni. The works of this artist are presented in many famous museums of world and private collections.
