Mère produced furniture and objects in wood, ivory, and precious metals after Waldraff's designs or decorated by him; several collaborative pieces are now in the collection of the Musée des Arts Décoratifs in Paris. Waldraff also designed silk brocades which were made in Lyon for several Parisian fashion houses, as well as book illustrations, stained glass designs and decorations for a mansion on the Champ de Mars in Paris.

Among his designs are many decorative motifs, as well as watercolors by and inspired by the dancer Isadora Duncan. Waldraff later settled in Menton in southern France
