Description

Knitter in mahogany and mahogany veneer resting on four feet skates. It consists of two openwork uprights joined by a top decorated with a bronze gallery forming a spacer. The uprights each end with three inverted consoles receiving the upper part. The latter is formed by a plateau with a high edge and a jump. One of the sides is tilting. Louis XVI period Usual restorations H. 71 x W. 79 x D. 6 cm Often found in a feminine interior, this practical little piece of furniture allows you to put down your work easily without a fall threatening to damage the work started. In mahogany, this small piece of furniture is a telling example of Anglomania. This form of knitter is linked to the production of several great cabinetmakers: Riesener, Carlin (sale of November 13, 2018, lot 339 Christie's), or even
