Description

Important all-sided table, called "middle", in blond mahogany in Art Deco style dating from the early 1900s. Its oblong top has a grooved belt and bec-de-corbin molding around the edge. Its red Pyrenees marble veined with white and gray stands out over about a centimeter. This tray rests on a large turned barrel with a black varnished wooden baluster decorated with a collar and four large bronze leaves. The base, identical, is also molded around the perimeter, in a half-round cord shape, and rests on four pancake feet. This table will appeal to lovers of atypical furniture and the Art Deco style.  Period: Early 20th Century Excellent condition. Satin waxed finish.
