Description

Beautiful armchair in solid ash upholstered in leather. This characterful seat rests on two turned gadrooned legs at the front and two arched legs at the rear. The curved belt stands out for its flattering veining. The seat, for its part, is upholstered in brown leather with solid studs. This characterful seat benefits from a curved and openwork backrest, distinguished by a wide curved band with hand cuffs set back from the seat, ending in a butt. This back rests on two consoles ending on the frame with a spiral decoration. The beauty of its wood and its warm color make this Louis-Philippe armchair an undeniable asset to accompany the office of your choice.  Period: 2nd half of the 19th century Excellent condition after restoration in our workshop. Waxed wood finish. Additional
