Description

This "Bonheur du Jour" desk is a remarkable testimony to the Louis XIV style, directly inspired by the aesthetics of Charles Boulle's marquetry. Dating from the 20th century, it embodies the timeless essence of 17th century France, perfectly combining classic elegance and contemporary functionality.

In exceptional condition, this desk offers detailed marquetry, reminiscent of the golden era of French furniture. Its quality and pristine condition demonstrate careful and meticulous preservation. Both functional and aesthetic, this "Bonheur du Jour" offers a practical layout with drawers and compartments, while remaining an exquisite piece of art. The artisanal quality manifested by the meticulousness of the marquetry reveals the traditional know-how that created it.
