Small Italian Mid-Century desk, console table or side table.

The object is extremely light-footed and also a little eccentric.

The bentwood top of mahogany is beautifully grained and has a warm, homely wood tone.

The edge is stained black. The surface is lacquered, but the pores are not closed - which emphasizes the character.

The curved edge runs out to the side - slightly offset to the back - trapezoidal. The tabletop rests on a wooden base to which 4 iron frames are attached to the 3 leg combination is welded in each case.

Elegantly pull the legs slightly outward down and then converge about 8cm from the floor to a bundle.

The solid brass foot caps are 7cm high and lay with a triangular shape starting around the foot, then the foot cap runs out round.

The sophistication of this table is in the details.
