Description

Porcelain vase of Japanese origin manufactured by SAMSON in the 19th century who copied many shaped pieces from all periods including this vase which is in the Tokyo Museum.

Decorations with three cartridges representing scenes of life, on the right a character carrying a fan and on the other a woman carrying a closed parasol for two decorations and one open on the third scene, a cherry tree in bloom in the center whose branches pass behind characters. Louis XVI style frames in gilded bronze. I don't have the lid of this vase.
