Description

Curious scene of joyful work in the fields, return of flowered hay carts, all of the characters are children. We can find a resemblance to Gerome Bosch's triptych "The Hay Cart", a biblical metaphor for the ephemeral nature of things in this world, where men, here children, are divided between angel (the wings) and demon (at the foreground, a vampire's kiss) under the eye of the ranger. Stained wooden frame 142 x 85 cm, panel 132 x 76 cm Oil on canvas mounted on panel, some small accidents.
