Description

The Bidjar carpet from the Shah era, made in wool, dating from the 1950s, embodies the very essence of exceptional oriental craftsmanship. With a remarkable fineness of 8000 to 9000 knots per square meter, every centimeter of this rug testifies to know-how passed down through generations. The vibrant colors, ranging from emerald green to earthy brown, captivate the eye and evoke a landscape of majestic cypress trees. Every detail, meticulously woven by hand, reflects the passion and dedication of the artisans. The important Bidjar Garrus design pattern, characteristic of the Shah era, adds an extra touch of sophistication to this timeless art object. This Bidjar rug transcends the boundaries of time, bringing incomparable elegance to any interior. Measurements: Length: 261 cm Width: 359 cm
