Description

Oak wood bed with one bed, similarly for a small person or a teenager. There is a large flat panel backplash then two large crosspieces and a small end with a large and a small column ending in a ball. The holes in the crosspieces correspond to the rope which served as a bed base. Recent brackets are fixed in order to install a box spring. The style is Renaissance, more particularly Henri II with the columns. France, late 16th/early 17th century. Other dimensions: Interior 163cmx88cm large column height 206cm
