Description

Very pretty little cylindrical dish, made from an alloy, generally Zinc, Copper and Lead. It is finely inlaid with silver parts with geometric decoration on the border and plants in the center. Work of artistic crafts called Bidri in reference to the city "Bidar" in the Deccan.

Good general condition, note some missing inlays, clearly visible in my detailed photos, thank you for looking at them carefully, I am not hiding anything!

Indian working, more precisely from the Deccan (or Dekkan), region of Bidar, dating from the second part of the 18th century, or the very beginning of the 19th century.
