FRANCE LA BORNE 20TH CENTURY
PYRITY STONEWARE PITCHER WITH
PINCH SPOUT Born in Casablanca in Morocco in 1954, Éric Astoul attended the Castelnaudary School, then trained in various workshops and self-taught. He will settle in La Borne and produce sculptural pieces, including so-called utilitarian pieces (as evidenced by our pitcher!), using this magnificent manna that is the sandstone land of La Borne, land of pottery for centuries , with cooking in a wood oven. These productions, to this day, are a hymn to material, nuance, uniqueness. Large pyrite stoneware pitcher with pinched spout, scarified body. Signed under the socket and the base and located
