Description

Elegant pair of wrought iron wall lights from the 1940s, reminiscent of the work of the famous ironworker Gilbert Poillerat. Each wall light has 4 finely crafted arms of light, adorned with fruit-shaped pendants in colored glass, in varied shapes and shades, which add a touch of refinement and fantasy. These wall lights, both utilitarian and decorative, can be used as candelabras or wall lights, thanks to their versatile design.

A superb example of wrought iron art from this period, ideal for enhancing an interior with an exceptional piece.
