one of the painter of the streets of Paris and Venice, of landscapes and seascapes with wild grasses. And the one that interests us here seems to have emerged from the depths of his dreams or twilight visions: an almost fauvist palette (Tyrian roses, Prussian blues straight out of the tube) of moving, twisting forms, represent animals and humans with an expressionist intensity. The forces of nature are expressed with a savagery, an apparent clumsiness that are akin to art brut.
