Description

Magnificent and heavy chocolate cup and its saucer from the beginning of the 19th century, between 1819 and 1838.

The saucer is in plain silver decorated with a frieze of water leaves and pearls on the rim.

The cup rests on a pedestal decorated with the same frieze that is also found on the lip.

The swollen belly is encircled halfway up with a frieze of laurel leaves.

The handle has a superb decoration of a cornucopia overflowing with fruit eaten by a goat's head.

The cup is formerly vermeiled, there are traces of it in the hollows.

The cup is hallmarked:

- . Goldsmith's hallmark erased and illegible
- . Old man's head, hallmark for Parisian silver 950/°° between 1819 and 1838
- . Head of Ceres, hallmark of large guarantee for the same period
- . Greek woman's head, called Janette Révolutionnaire, hallmark used between 1792 and 1838.
- . Later boar's head hallmark, after 1838

Magnificent large cup with a very elegant decoration, still in the imperial style. Its dimensions and weight make it an important piece of first quality.
