Description

Charming painting rich in material representing a corner of a farm animated by chickens behind a double vault in the diffuse light of the sun. This pretty work that can be described as Impressionist because it has all the elements; the suggestion of the French beams in the half-light, the rusticity of the stones that make up the vault, the colors and the generous and instantaneous paste, all give a spontaneous and very successful work where the seduced eye does the rest. A beautiful presence for this small painting in good condition and with a beautiful glaze; the sober gilded wooden frame with a frieze of palmettes from the period presents with delicacy and restraint this beautiful and realistic countryside painting. A very present work with remarkable technique, very elaborate, as the painters of Barbison knew how to do or
