Description

Important Louis XV style fireplace-surround, sturdy, curved and richly carved. In veined Carrara marble. Ca.1875. Recently found and currently being cleaned in my workshop. Under Louis XV, 1710-1774, the shell (or rocaille) is very often used as a motif in the center of the lintel as well as at the top of the jambs. The general shape of the lintel becomes more curved. On the photo of the shelf, you can see that the two 'retours' are already connected. Cos this fireplace is a surround and has deeper sidepanels. They can be simple taken off, if you go for a Front-version with no retours. The beauty of this fireplace is also the height: 120 cm (47.24 inch). With a average width: 143 cm. Will be delivered with old marble floortiles to make a frontfloor. Could be Carrara and/or Noir de
