Description

Louis XV period bedside table, made of solid walnut in the 18th century. This piece of furniture is distinguished by its scalloped front, typical of the Louis XV style. The sides of the bedside table have heart-shaped openings, adding a touch of fantasy and lightness to the whole. The very arched legs give a slender and refined look, while ensuring perfect stability. The original patina, beautifully preserved, highlights the richness of the walnut and the finesse of the wood grain.
