Description

This pedestal table, dating from the Art Deco period of the 1930s, is a perfect example of minimalist and clean design. Made from amboyna burl, a precious wood known for its unique grain patterns, it embodies the understated luxury and elegance of the period. The circular table top is topped with a fitted glass plate, adding a touch of modernity and refinement. This combination of materials highlights the natural beauty of the wood while providing a practical and durable surface. The table rests on three straight legs, which meet at the bottom to form a second spacer plate. This structure not only ensures the stability of the table, but also adds an additional aesthetic dimension, emphasizing the simplicity and functionality of the design. This piece is a testament to the innovation and craftsmanship of
