Beautiful interior scene, depicted in the most typical Flemish tradition, ready to capture the simplest moments of daily life.

In this case the usual smokers and drinkers give way to a more unusual scene, where the author describes an intimate moment of a girl probably cared for by her mother before an important appointment. The old lady washes the long hair of the elegantly dressed young woman. The scene is enlivened by an affectionate child with the inevitable little dog.

The painting is a typical work of Flemish production which saw David Teniers II and his pupils as protagonists, with an infinite variety of both internal and external depictions of rural life.

The painting is in excellent condition with a splendid coeval frame in carved and gilded carved wood.
