Description

Zinc slipper bathtub from the late 18th-early 19th century with seat, carrying handles, drain, on a wooden base, support backrest Used condition, can be put back into service Dimensions 100 x 120 cm Bathtub model similar to that of Marat who placed a board on the edges in front of him to write his lists of convictions while taking his baths to relieve him of his skin disease. Slipper bathtub: This is a fairly deep but small tub, in the shape of a slipper, equipped with a built-in seat. The slipper bathtub is perfect for retro-style bathrooms but also for small spaces, for children and people with reduced mobility.
