Description

White Carrara marble fireplace, Pompadour style, carved at the beginning of the 20th century, in good condition. Its top is scalloped and its slightly curved band, decorated with molded reserves, is flanked by curved uprights with protruding volutes. Its painted sheet metal constriction and brass threads are original. Very discreet restorations of its left upright. Its length to the body is 124 cm. The dimensions of its hearth are 33 cm wide and 39 cm high. By removing the central part of the constriction, with its cast iron grids, it is possible to obtain a hearth 81 cm wide and 80 cm high, while keeping the two brass threads.
