Description

Bust of Diana the Huntress - Biscuit, 19th century
Superb biscuit bust of Diana the Huntress, dating from the 19th century. Inspired by classical representations of the goddess of the hunt, this sculpture is distinguished by its elegance and the finesse of its execution. Diana is depicted wearing a headband, her hair finely waved and swept back. Her noble and serene gaze evokes the grace and determination characteristic of ancient figures. The drapery of her garment is sculpted with great precision, highlighting the fluidity of the fabric and the refinement of the details. The biscuit, an unglazed material, gives the work a matte and silky appearance, accentuating its refinement and its resemblance to marble. This bust rests on a lightly patinated pedestal, testifying to its age and authenticity. In perfect
