Description

Important and imposing Neapolitan table divisible into two crescents entirely in solid wood. A table of excellent workmanship from a noble family, entirely in its original state. Large in size, in its line and quality it lends itself to multiple uses. In addition to having the possibility of being extended further, it lends itself to a center table, a meeting table or a large dining table of 210 centimeters of fixed length. Epoch Louis Philippe circa 1850
