Description

This stunning late 19th-century Austrian antler bench is a true testament to exceptional craftsmanship and timeless elegance. Unlike older, more massive designs that incorporated a larger volume of antler, this piece has been crafted with a refined sense of balance and lightness, showcasing the craftsman's skill in creating a silhouette that is both striking and ethereal. The naturally shed antlers - ethically collected - have been carefully assembled using an invisible and solid construction technique, ensuring remarkable durability and stability. To combine comfort and style, the seat has been recently reupholstered in natural linen with plush quilting, adding a contemporary touch while preserving the bench's historic charm. Measuring 160 cm in length, 98 cm in height and 85 cm in
