Description

Small Walnut Community Buffet From The 18th Century "Louis XIV community buffet in walnut, Burgundy 18th century. Charming low Louis XIV walnut buffet, 1st half of the 18th century. a small commissioned or religious community buffet as one could find at the hospices of Beaune for example. It is sober and has an opening by two molded mitred doors whose central panel is carved with a hexagon with double bands presented in a square motif. The top is sober and in very good condition, composed of two walnut boards, with a nice profile on the edge. The sides are soberly worked with a band with a rectangular chamfered molding. It is decorated with a low molding with a nice profile. It rests on two loaf feet at the front and its rear uprights end with square feet, both of which have been grafted on
