

Bronze After The Sabine Women, Tatius

880 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Bronze

Width : 17

Height : 18,5

Depth : 7

Description

Beautiful bronze sculpture with a nuanced brown patina representing Tatius, King of the Cures among the Sabines (and later co-King of Rome, whose throne he would have shared with Romulus) protecting himself with his shield, after the famous painting by Jacques-Louis David (1748-1825), The Sabine Women, painted between 1796 and 1799, now kept at the Louvre Museum in Paris. On a rectangular base in red griotte marble (small chips). End of the 19th century. Good condition. Height of the bronze: 16.5 cm. Dimensions of the base: width 17 - height 2 - depth 7 cm.

Dealer

Cléry Antiques

18th century furnitures and fine art objects

Tel : 0689602398

Mobile : 06 89 60 23 98

86 rue de Cléry

Paris 75002