Description

Very imposing clock called the elephant, it is in patinated bronze brown, chocolate and green reflections for the base. It rests on an original marble "portor" moved to the shape of the base of the very thick clock. The whole is in very good condition but the base has on its surface a good number of hollows in which there must have been these inclusions of marble of golden yellow color which most certainly jumped during the manufacture of this base or perhaps with time but unlikely which does not in any way hinder the visual aspect of the base !!
