Caucasian Kazak Rug - Circa 1900, Hand-knotted

1 300 EUR

Period : 20th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Wool

Description

Caucasus region, probably Kazak type, hand-woven around 1900. This rug is distinguished by its marked geometric composition typical of Kazak rugs. The central field features a large octagonal turquoise blue medallion on a burgundy background, flanked by two complex cruciform motifs, themselves centered by sky blue and red diamonds. These motifs are typical of Caucasian tribal traditions, sometimes interpreted as protective or spiritual symbols. Around the central field, stylized floral elements and geometric animals (probably birds and quadrupeds) reinforce the tribal aesthetic. The main border is decorated with a series of multicolored diamond patterns framed by serrated friezes, in shades of brown, blue, red and ivory. Color palette: o Main background: Deep
