Description

This beautiful drawing executed in the course of the 18th century represents a station of the life of Saint Bruno after the table of Eustache Le Sueur for the Chartreuse of Vauvert (today Luxembourg garden). Very good design, finely executed, everything is perfect, nothing is left to chance as at "Le Sueur" No signature or monogram. The state is to discover on the photos, it was marouflé, at the time on the cardboard of the artisan gilding painter "Vézinier" who can be the author, (these people knew how to do everything) This man can be involved in the installation in the Louvre of paintings by Le Sueur bought by Louis XVI? The marouflage still holds on the upper part, the leaf is slightly insolated.
