Description

Very large pair of glass pot probably from Murano around 1920-1930.

These large pots are enameled, gilded and decorated with patterns painted with angels playing the flute and women with wings surrounding cartridges with the names of Crocus and Sublimato.

Other enamelled floral decorations appear on the back of these pots as well as on the lids. Wear appears on the enamelled decorations and one of the two lids has been restored.

This imposing pair of pharmacy jars was probably intended to decorate a pharmacy at the beginning of the century.

The gilding on both pots is very beautiful and has changing reflections in the light.

The set is really beautiful large and very
