

Big Sculpture Quasimodo (48cm)the Hunchback In Love With Esmeralda Notre Dame De

Description

Quasimodo abandoned by his parents for his deformity and his ugliness. Bossu, lame - his legs are torso, deaf because of the bells, one-eyed the misshapen face his face merges with the gargoyles of Our Lady, the red hair and the enormous hands. Despite everything this repulsive physical character is courageous, in love, savior ... He represents strength, agility and inner beauty. Esmeralda, she is the grace is the physical beauty, the empathy and the pity for the monster Quasimodo. For Victor HUGO this improbable couple perhaps represented the hope in humanity. The sculpture of Quasimodo is in direct size, full wood, all sides (3D). It is in oak, a hard and fibrous wood in accordance with a rough sculpture of the misshapen character, with a shortened and hunchbacked body. With
