available under the Restoration because of his Bonapartist opinions, he joined the army in 1830. General in 1841, Randon spent most of his career in Algeria where his administration was marked by numerous military expeditions. He was appointed Director of Algerian Affairs at the Ministry of War from March to June 1848, then Governor General the day after the coup, a post he retained for eight years. Marshal of France in 1856, he held the post of Minister of War from January 24 to October 26, 1851 and from May 5, 1859 to January 20, 1867. Replaced by Marshal Niel. His health no longer allowing him to participate in military life, he retired to Geneva in 1870 and died on January 13, 1871. Jacques Louis César Randon was the nephew of General Jean-Gabriel Marchand (+ 1851). On his death, he inherited his title of count and his domain and his domain of Saint-Ismier (Isère).
