Camille Claudel born in Fère-en-Tardenois (Aisne) on December 8, 1864, and died in Montdevergues (Montfavet - Vaucluse) on October 19, 1943, is a French sculptor and painter. Her art of sculpture, which is both realistic and expressionist, is similar to Art Nouveau by its skilful use of curves and meanders. Collaborator of the sculptor Auguste Rodin, sister of the poet, writer, diplomat and academician Paul Claudel, her career is meteoric, broken by a forced psychiatric internment and an
