The fine pair of candlesticks was made in France in the 19th Century in finely chiselled and gilded bronze, Louis XVI taste. With an oval base, they have a tapered column stem from which leave two arms with leafy volutes supporting two electrified candles and equipped with a fabric lampshade. On the top of the central body is placed a bronze vase surrounded by garlands in laurel leaf and, on the top, a pine cone.

The compositional balance, the contained dimensions and the brightness of the gilded bronze that stands out with the lighting of the
