Description

First of all, this prayer rug is distinguished by its rare tones, curry, saffron, gold, midnight blue, ...

This rug from Anatolia built in wool on silky wool owes its manufacture prior to 1950, between 1920, 1950, he presents us with a tall and proud staircase mihrab accompanied by two columns and two planks of apple blossoms symbolizing life and fertility.

The midnight blue board covered with stylized flowers can remind us of the night or the firmament touched by the tip of the mihrab.

The border is composed entirely of landscapes of villages of towers and minarets, as well as cupolas. One can easily feel the devotion of the knoter or the knoter, so complex is the symbolism.

Its Anatolian origins are sure but the difficulty of
