Description

Studio sculptures, school work after models by Michelangelo.

They represent two draped young women, one carrying an armful of flowers, the other an apple.

The attitude is graceful and lively. It is a beautiful work of sculpture underlined by a very pretty patina. In walnut carved in the mass, late 19th century, Italian work.

They are in good general condition and both have only had very slight invisible restorations (tip of a finger, tail of the apple) Mounted on blackened wooden bases.
