Born in Langres (Haute-Marne) in 1887

Died in Langres in 1981

Painter of typical scenes, figures, portraits, landscapes.

A student of Fernand Cormon and Jules Adler, Jules René Hervé moved to Paris and began to exhibit at the Salon des Artistes Français in 1910.

Jules René Hervé received a silver medal in 1914 and a gold medal in 1925.

Then Jules René Hervé shared his life between Paris and his native city, of which he painted, with a light brush, expert in small lively flashes of gray or ochre skilfully distributed, the humble and picturesque events, the portraits of its austere society with a monotonous and muffled existence
- But Jules René Hervé knew just as well how to restore the lively atmosphere of Parisian life and its monuments or the dancers in the foyer of the Opera House -

From his finely observed compositions emanate delicate feelings - Appreciated by French and foreign amateurs, Jules René Hervé devoted himself to his art throughout his life -

Jules René Hervé is considered as "the last of the impressionists".
