Description

French or Belgian school circa 1920 : "Young girl with a jug", pastel on thick chamois paper 65 X 54 cm, mounted with a neutral pH bevel under a "museum" glass in a Parnassian frame 84 X 72 cm. This delightful, unfortunately anonymous pastel is presented like a painting in its beautiful Regency style frame and is fitted with this almost glare-free glass that gives the impression of not being there! The young girl, her chin proudly raised, is sitting cross-legged, her hand resting on her pitcher. She wears a necklace of blue pearls and her headgear from which escape abundant curly hair, is girded with a scarf falling on her chest.
