Description

These two fine earthenware vases, on a blue background from Tours, were designed by the ceramist Maurice Pinon and came from the Tourangelles Jaget factory. These objects, of good height, present a flared body, with gilded decorations of flowering branches, a trophy with a quiver and a torch. A high bulbous collar is adorned with a band decorated with a triumphal laurel wreath, and an eagle in its center. These items are illustrated symmetrically. With its bright and contrasting colors, this pair of vases will bring charisma to your interior.

Period: Early 20th century.
